OUR HOME DUTIES. - We have just emerged from another of those heated political contests which frequently occur in our State, and often leave behind them embittered feelings and personal animosities unworthy of our better natures. The smoke has at last cleared away from the battle-field, and, in the calm which necessarily ensues after the heat and strife, we are enabled to review the past, perhap with some regret for the zeal of partizanship, but ever hopeful and sanguine of the future. We to not intend to abate one jot or tittle in our devotion to the principles we have so strenuously advocated, nor do we feel any less detestation for the miserable policy of our opponen's and the system of factics by which they have run riot through the land, but there are other duties equally requiring attention, and in the performance of which men of all classes and parties can harmonize most cordially. These duties are such as pertain particularly to the advancement of our home interests-to the prosperity of ourselves as individuals and of the community generally-to the increase of our manufacturesthe extension of trade and commerce, and a thousand other things which, though separately trivial, to make up an aggregate that is of astonishing

Louisville has now arrived at a crisis in her history. She is in a position that will enable her to double her population and wealth within a decade. Stable, wealthy, and reliable, her capitalists need in addition to these admirable qualities the infusion of a spirit of greater energy and more decided progress. We possess in our midst, in an unusual de gree, the elements of a vast, influential, and growing city. Nothing prevents our attaining the front rank in the West except that miserable apathy which has here so often blighted enterprises of the most attractive and plausible character. Energetic, united and spirited action is requisite. There must be unity of purpose and concert of movement. As a community, we can hope to accomplish nothing while there remains a feeling of bitterness, of party asperity, and of local jealousy. Work together we may not in the political traces, but all can give a dong, strong, and hearty pull together in the advancement of manufactures and trade. We can unite in building railroads and constructing turnpikes. There can be no differences of a serious nature generated when we are heartily engaged on such labor. We can join hands in the erection of workshops and the peopling of our city with hardfisted, great-hearted, and useful mechanics. And such union there is ever strength.

To the performance of such manifest and unques tionable duties let us all address ourselves with a heartiness and earnestness of purpose worthy of the nobility of the cause. We shall now have a long breathing spell, in which there will be ample time t) restore all confidence that may have been shaken-in which we can cement ancient friendships and dispel whatever unpleasantness the heat and excitement of political warfare may have temporarily May we not hope that there will be a unanimous expression of opinion in favor of this union of all classes in behalf of the general good. The prosperity of our city should be chief among the dearest objects of our exertions. All of our interests are at stake in the result. It is a matter of vital moment t) the pecuniary condition of every man, to his social comfort, and to the glory and honor of the city in the eyes of the world. What these home duties are it is needless to specify. Every good citizen thoroughly understands them, and upon their performance every good citizen will enter with cheerfu ss, alacrity, and activity.

The Coroner yesterday held an inquest on the body of Matthias Last, who resides at the corner of Fifteenth and Main streets. He was attacked with apoplexy and died in about three minutes. The deceased was a native of Germany, and leaves a family in destitute circumstances.

(For the Louisville Bulletin.) I AM DREAMING.

BY D. HARDY, JR.

I am dreaming to-night, I am dreaming, And backward my vision is east To the bliss-haunted days that now slumber Away in the tomb of the Past; I see them in all of their beauty, But see them alone through my tears, And they seem to me now like blest islands Away in the lone sea of years.

I am dreaming to-night, I am dreaming, I'm roaming the long-ago time, And its air is as sweet and delightful As that of a tropical clime; Many visions of pleasures departed Come over me now as I dream Like the shadows that sometimes in summer Pass noiselessly over a stream.

I am dreaming to-night. I am dreaming. Bright eyes through my tear-drops I see In the pictures of beauty now gleaming Away in the past upon me; And the love-light that from them is beaming, Though saddened by heart-bursting sighs, Seems as holy as bright rays of glory Gleaming down from God's throne in the skies.

I am dreaming to-night, I am dreaming Of one who is lost to my sight, Who has gone in her angelic beauty To dwell with the angels of light; O, her voice was as sweet as the music That steals from a lute on the breeze, And her love was more dear than the treasures Am thinking her spirit divine Hovers o'er me on beautiful pinions To hold sweet communion with miner There is music angelic around me, I list the symphonious lays, For they come to my soul like the echo Of earlier, happier days.

I am dreaming to-night, I am dreaming,

I am dreaming to-night, I am dreaming Of a glorious time to be, When my spirit will cease its repinings, My heart frem its sorrow be free; When my spirit will be reunited With those who have now gone before— What a blessed, triumphant reunion, Away on Eternity's shore. RUSSELLVILLE, Ky., April 25, 1857.

THE EXHIBITION OF THE MECHANICS' INSTITUTE We are happy to state that the forthcoming exhibi tion promises to be much more interesting and extensive than any yet held-fine as they have beenand that the Institute is flourishing in all respects. Members are coming in rapidly, the Library is well sustained, the finances are in a very good condition, and general interest seems to be felt by our citizens in this worthy enterprise.

The efficient and energetic officers, anticipating a great crowd of people, and an unusually large number of articles for exhibition, have enlarged their Hall and made various alterations and improvements. The building is being dazzlingly whitened, outside and inside, it is to be handsomely decorated under the direction of a gentleman of taste; the machinery will be placed in a different part of the house, and the boiler removed across the alley in the rear of the Hall; an efficient corps of policemen has been engaged; and, we would not omst to state, the services of Plato's splendid Brass Band have been secured. We have no doubt that this exhibition will do credit to our city, and result in great benefit to it.

We are informed that the Hall will be opened for the reception of goods and the location of space at A. M. next Tuesday, the 11th, and gently hint to xhibitors that they had better be on hand-those ho come first can chose-those who come late may get no place. All who want tickets can get them from the Actuary at the Library Rooms.

New Spurious Note.—A new $10 note on the "Merchants Bank," Baltimore, Md., made its advent in Cincinnati on Tuesday. It has for center rignette two human figuress, figure of monster of monster slow of sale but prices unaltered. standing on Chest, &c., and letter X each side. Genuine bill has for center vignette a railroad train. This difference will enable our readers to detect this attempt to impose on the public.

THE CROPS SOUTH .- We learn from our exchanges that the recent rains in North Mississippi, North Alabama, West Tennessee, and Arkansas have proven of incalculable benefit to corn and cotton. The corn crop, it is stated, will beyond doubt prove immensely large. Cotton has also improved cidedly, and if the season continues favorable a little longer, will turn out well.

The New York Police Commissioners balloted one hundred and fifty-one times, on Saturday, to fill the vacancy in the Board of Police Commissioners, caused by the resignation of Dr. Draper, without electing. Three voted for a Republican, two for a Democrat, and one for an American. The vote was precisely the same on each ballot.

DESTRUCTIVE FIRE .- On Sunday night a fire supposed to be the work of an incendiary, broke out in St. Paul's, a small village on the Indianapolis and Cincinnati Railroad, between Greensburg and Shelbyville. On account of the scarcity of water, seven houses-about half of the village-were consumed before the flames were extinguished.

We are constantly annoyed by failures of the Southern mail, owing doubtless to the negligence of contractors. Last night our Memphis papers came through, but the New Orleans, Mobile, and Nashville exchanges failed. All come through by the same route, and the failure can only be attributed to the stage drivers.

RIVER AND STEAMBOAT MATTERS.

The river has commenced falling here. Last eve ning there were 6 feet 8 inches water in the canal and 4 feet 4 inches on the falls.

For New Orleans .- The new steamer E. H. Fairchild, did not get off last evening, but she will pos itively leave this evening. Her cabins are beautifully furnished, and have every appointment to ren der a trip on her comforable. Mr. Leyden takes the best possible care of all who travel on the Fairchild.

The W. A. Eaves is the packet for Evansville today. She connects there with Bowling Green, a regular Green river packet. The Eaves will take freight for Rumsey, on Green river.

The steamer City of Cairo has postponed her departure for St. Louis till to-day. The Yorktown and Princess are advertised for Nashville. The Superior, Capt. Summons, is the mailboat for Cincinnati to-day. The J. H. Done is the packet for Carrollton: The Northerner will arrive from Memphis to-day, and leave for that port again to-morrow evening.

ROLLING MILL BURNED. - Saturday evening last, as we learn from the Pittsburg papers, the rolling mill of the Cambria Iron Works, at Johnstown, Pa., was burned down. The works belonged to Messrs. Wood, Morell, & Co., and were principally employed in the manufacture of railroad iron. Three hundred men were thrown out of employment, and if the furnaces in the vicinity have to stop, three thousand hands will be out of work. The property des troyed was worth about $90,000, upon which there was insurance to the amount of $50,000.

The Agameminon left Greenwich on the 24th for Sheerness to have her compasses adjusted, after which she would proceed direct to Cork.

An importent alteration in the arrangements for laying the cable had been determined upon. Plan now adopted, instead of comencing in mid ocean is to submerge whole cable in a continuous line from Valencia Bay to Newfoundland. The Niagara will lay first half from Ireland to the middle of the Atlantic, the end will then be joized to the other half on board the Agameminon, which takes it on to the coast of Newfoundland. During the whole progress the four vessels will remain together, and give whatever assistance is required. Constant communications.

THE ELECTION.—The returns which we received vesterday and last night indicate, the success in the Third and Fourth Congressional districts, Messrs. Underwood and Anderson, by small majoritles. The Democrats will have a majority in the lower branch of the Legislature and on joint ballot.

FOURTH DISTRICT.

FOURTH DISTRICT.

Boyle Co.—Danville, Aug. 4—The vote of this county stands: For Treasurer, Jones 598; Garrard 359. For Congress, Anderson 718; Talbot 333.

Anderson's majority is tremendons—the largest the county has given to any man for years. G. S. Caldwell, Amer., is our Representative in the Legisture. We think Anderson is elected. It is a little in doubt, however, though not seriously so. Lincoln gives him 451 majority, and Casey 260. Pulaski gives Talbot 193 majority, and Green and Taylor combined about 500. We have yet to hear from Clinton, Adair, Wayne, Russell, and Cumberland. In Adair and Cumberland we look for large gains over the vote of 1855, and expect to hold our own in the others.

Greene Co.—Greensburg, Aug. 4.—Talbot's maj. in this county is about 210. His maj. over Fox was 221. Reports from two precincts in Adair give small gains for Anderson.

In Iowa there is scarcely any land for private entry at present. In the Osage, Fort Dodge, and Sioux City Districts, with the exception of some poor lands, there is scarcely an acre left. In the Fort Dodge District a large quantity of poor land has been entered.

In Wisconsin the lands were withdrawn from market for the purpose of allowing the railways to take their grants, and they have not yet been returned.

In Minnesota Territory the lands are nearly all withdrawn from market on account of the railroad grants. In the Stillwater and Sauk Rapids Districts, however, there are a few scattering 40 acres tracts left.

In Kansas and Nebraska the lands are not in market. They are, however, subject to pre-emp-

THE RUSSIAN MILLENIUM—In five years from the present date Russia will have attained the age of 1000 years, an event to be celebrated by the erection of a monument, for which a subscription has just been set on foot. The monument is to be built in the city of Novgorod, and voluntary contributions in aid of its erection will be received by the government officials throughout the empire until 1862.

Previous to the year 862 the territory which now constitutes Russia in Europe was occupied for the most part by nomadic tribes, principally of Tartar origin. Through their intercourse with the Roman and Byzantine empires, some of these tribes acquired a certain degree of civilization. The Sclaves, who made the most rapid advances toward civilization, built the towns of Novgorod (Latin movus hortus—new enclosure or settlement) and Kiew. They were, however, for a long time subject to the depredations of neighboring tribes, and hence it happened that in 862 they placed themselves under the protection of three western chiefs—Rurick, Sineus, and Truror—who came with a host of their countrymen to Novgorod and established three principalities.

host of their countrymen to Novgorod and established three principalities.

These people have generally been designated as Northmen, though on this point difference of opinion exists among historians, some asserting that they were Germans, and others that they were Scandinavians or Normans. On the death of his brothers, Rurik reigned alone, and fused his countrymen and the now subjugated Sclaves into one people, whom he called Russian. The Novgorod was in 862 the nucleus of that great empire which may yet, before the year 1862 comes round, attain the end it has so long aimed at—the possession of Constantinople.

The following is a copy of the circular issued by the Minister of the Interior, inviting contributions

DEATH OF COL. F. B. OGDEN.—Died, on the 4th of July, at his residence, Queen's square, Bristol, England, in his seventy-fourth year, Col. F. B. Ogden, Consul of the States for that port. The deceased gentleman was the third son of Geo. Matthias Ogden, and was born in Boonton, in the State of New Jersey, on the 31st of March, 1783. He was appointed by President Andrew Jackson, in 1828, as Consul for the United States for Liverpool, where he served for eleven years, and was erpool, where he served for eleven years, and was then transferred to Bristol. Mr. Ogden was one of the pioneers of steam navigation. So early as 1811 he was attracted to it by the successful experiments of Mr. Fulton, and in 1816 constructed the first double engine that was ever placed on board a boat with expansive steam. With the locat thus equipmed he was the first town. board a boat with expansive steam. With the boat thus equipped, he was the first to venture on a sea voyage; he proceeded with her from New York to Norfolk, in Virginia, and established her as a packet on the James river. In 1817, Mr. Ogden went to England and submitted his plans to Mr. James Watt, who said to him, "Mr. Ogden, I do not hesitate to declare it will make a beautiful engine." During the latter years of his life Mr. Ogden was engaged in perfecting a scientific sounding instrument, the combined inventor tific sounding instrument, the combined invention of Mr. Ogden and Capt. J. Ericsson, C. E. He was a member of the order of Cincinnati, which he inherited from his father and which descends to BIG JUMP.—The biggest jump we have heard of recently was made a day or two since by a man who wanted to stop at a station on the Central road who wanted to stop at a station on the Central road that the express train didn't break up at. The train was going at 45 miles an hour—just as the station was passed, the individual referred to rushed out of the rear car, carpet-bag in hand, and jumped. He struck on the ground some little distance, of course, from the point at which he left the cars. One foot struck the ground first, and so heavily did he come down, that the heel of his boot was torn off. His second foot struck twelve feet distant from his first track, and the boot heel was also ripped from his second foot struck twelve feet distant from his first track, and the boot heel was also ripped from his other boot. The man continued his rapid movements, being thrown into all sorts of positions—for some distance beyond. He finally "brought up" no less than seventy four feet from the spot where he left the rushing train. On picking himself up, he was asked if he had been hurt, when he answered he did not know, and immediately picking up his watch and a number of his buttons, which had been scattered by the shock, and seizing his carpet-bag, he started off, with his dinner pretty well settled,—New Haven Register.

A colored man at the Northern Liberties Market, whose legs have been cut off above the knees, heard a couple of gentlemen commisserating his condition the other day, when he turned from the work in which he was engaged, and said, laughingly, "Why, ge'men, you couldn't do this work widout breaking your backs a-stoopin' down." Moral—Whole legs are not essential to happiness, though a contented exist may be. spirit may be.

[Letter from W. C. Bryant.] THE PAUPER COLONIES OF HOLLAND.

HEIDELBERG, July 14, 1857. I have made, with my family, the tour of Belgium

HEIDELBERG, July 14, 1897.

I have made, with my family, the tour of Belgium and Holland, and coming down from Friesland by one of the Hanoverian railways to the Rhine, am resting for a few days in Heidelberg. We are the more disposed to suspend our somewhat rapid journey here on account of the heat of the weather, which is very great, one hot day succeeding another, which is very great, one hot day succeeding another, which is very great, one hot day succeeding another, which is very great, one hot day succeeding another, which is very great, one hot day succeeding another, which is very great, one hot day succeeding another, which is very great of the weather, which is very great of Holland, I made a visit to the pauper colonies of Fredericksoord and Willemsoord, in the province of Oberwissel. Here are tracts of sandy soil covered with heath and shrubs, which, from the time when they were first formed from the bottom of the sea, till now, have been abandoned to utter barrenness. The great calamity of Holland is pauperism, and somewhat more than thirty years ago a benevolent society was formed for the purpose of settling the poor, who had become a public charge, upon the waste lands of the kingdom, with a view of reducing them to cultivation. They purchased a tract of land, mostly uncultivated, in the province of Ober-Yssel, where they made a beginning with some of the poor of Amsterdam, who had been thrown upon the public charity. The colony thus established has now increased to a considerable community, yet it has made, I suppose, as much impression upon the vast made, I suppose, as much impression upon the vast mass of pauperism in Holland as the Colonization Society has made upon the mass of slavery in the United States. United States.

We took a carriage at the ancient village of We took a carriage at the ancient village of Steenwyck, and proceeded over a road so sandy that we were obliged to travel very slowly, and rendered almost impassable in some places by an attempt to macadamize it. We passed several comfortable looking tenements of the peasantry with little flower gardens in front of them, and at length the coachman said, "We are in the colony." I could not see that the habitations of the paupers seemed any less comfortable than those of the dis-trict through which we had just passed. They were neat brick buildings, spacious enough to contain, trict through which we had just passed. They were neat brick buildings, spacious enough to contain, besides the rooms for the family, a stable for the cow, a place for the pig, and room for the fuel. Near each was a little garden surrounded by a well-pleached hawthorn hedge, and outside of the hedge a ditch; for the Hollander, from mere habit, always a surrounded his density with a ditch, which they have a ditch; for the Hollander, from mere habit, always surrounds his domain with a ditch, whether there is any occasion for it or not. Back of the gardens were fields of rye and barley and other crops, and beyond, in places, was a forest of shrubs and dwarf trees, looking like the scrub-oak plains on the worst parts of Long Island; and in places extensive wastes, the like of which is not seen in our country, covered with dark heath of a purple tinge, and stretching out of sight.

The Director was not at home, and we were ac-The Director was not at home, and we were accompanied over the village by one of the book-keepers, who was ready to communicate what he knew, but who spoke French (the only language we understood in common) very imperfectly, and in a low tone of voice. He took us into several of the dwellings. The first we entered was that of a widow from Groningen, who had two or three children able to work at the loom. It was a miracle of neatness. The woman had established in the outer toom her summer kitchen, in which were the pigness. The woman had established in the outer room her summer kitchen, in which were the pigpen and stable, and had made it as clean as the nicest parlor in our own country. We looked into the winter room; it was as nice as a new sideboard just from the cabinet-maker's. She had a comfortable bed in a little closet, after the Dutch fashion. In a room above were the beds of the children, in a kind of boxes on each side. Notwithstanding these appearances of comfort, the woman took our courier appearances of comfort, the woman took our courier aside, and complained bitterly of the hardness of her lot. She affirmed that she was half-starved, and begged him to intercede with the Director in her bebegged him to intercede with the Director in her behalf. When the matter was afterwards mentioned to the book-keeper, he said that there was no end to the complaints of these people, and that the more they got the more they asked for. We went into another house, in which was a good-looking family of both sexes, well-clad, and living in a manner which had every appear: so of thrift. The rooms gluttered with the display of crockery and polished metal utensils, and were hung with cheap engravings.

We were taken to the manufactory of the village, a room full of looms where coarse cotton cloth is woven by the children between twelve and eighteen years of age, for the Dutch soldiery in the East In-dies. The looms were clashing merrily—the girls, in particular, jerked the shuttles backward and for-ward with incredible swiftness. "These children," said the book-keeper, "earn a great deal for their families; in fact, those who come to our colony must either week or steave, if they are destinately idle either work or starve; if they are obstinately idle, they get nothing to eat."

We were shown the school-house, a building with two spacious rooms, in which the children were taught according to the liberal system of public education established in Holland. The school had been suspended for a while, as the building was undergoing repairs. Religious teachers are provided for the colony—a Protestant, a Catholic, and a Jewish Rabbi. The colonists receive copper and iron tokens for their labor, and this forms the money of the colony. With these they purchase the necessaries for which they have occasion from the magazines of the colony, where everything is sold but intoxicating liquors, the sale of which is forbidden.

I could obtain no exact information of the profit or loss of this enterprise. "These people," said the book-keeper, "cost the society a great deal. They come from the cities unaccustomed to the work we require of them, and often with families of very young children, who are of too tender an age to work. They must be subsisted and their subsiswork. They must be subsisted, and their subsis-ence is a heavy charge."

There are now about four hundred families in the colony, numbering two thousand six hundred persons. To prevent the excessive growth of the community, and to confine the operations of the institution to their original object, all the young, on reaching the age of twenty, are obliged to leave it, as well as all the young who marry.

"A CITY WITHOUT A LAWYER .- Dubuque, Iowa, is unblessed by the presence of a single lawyer."
We denounce this as a trick of the Western railroads to swell their August receipts beyond all pre-

An American gentleman, having seated himself An American gentieman, naving seated nimself in a London omnibus, saw and heard what not a little amused him. A man, bearing no particular marks of authority, looked in the door, took a professional view of the passengers, and called out to the driver, without any pretence at modest concealment of his thoughts: "You can't go on, there's two of the swell mob in here." The coach waited, two or the swell moor in here. The coach waited, till at length a pursy, well-looking old man rose and stepped out, saying, as he did so: "I've too much money with me to ride with pickpockets." In a moment more a spruce young individual said, as he decamped, "I'll followed that old gentleman's lead." "Go on, now," said the detective policeman, "the swells have got out!" swells have got out!"

A Fair Hit.—A book agent calling on a gentleman in Wilkinson county, a few days since, to solicit a subscription for a book soon to be published in New York, "No, sir!" said the planter, "I do not want a book from that abolition hole. I would not have it at any price!" "Very well," said the agent, "I can suit you! Here, sir, is a book published in Boston. As Mississippi gets her code printed there, you cannot, of course, object to my books!" We believe our planting friend came down and took both the books, one from New York and the other from Boston.—Natchez (Miss.) Free Trader.

Having been summoned by the Queen to appear at Windsor Castle, and enact with the corps of literary the spians, the new play of Wilk'e Collins, of the "Frozen Deep," Charles Dicken sreplied that he was ready to do so if the Queen was willing to receive himself and companions as guests, on the same footing with other visitors to the castle, but that he declined to go under any other circumstances.

Near Edith, S. C., a crop is about to be gathered of four acres of sunflowers. The seed will be used for oil, and to feed cattle and poultry, as in the south of France; but the chief object is to obtain the fibres of the stalks for paper making. If the cultivation succeeds, it is expected to supply abundant materials for fine writing and printing paper, as well as fine and coarse for paper hanging.

English Wealth and Luxuriousness.—Some of our new York Fifth avenue swells make very respectable attempts to do the "palatial" in their houses and style of living, and put forth ambitious efforts to imitate the English country seats, in the possession of what the English would call a "snug box" on the Hudson river, and ten, twenty, or a hundred acres. An account before us of the luxurious style of living among the English aristocracy throws our parvenue pretenders into the shade.

About sixty miles from London is the estate of the Earl of Spencer, which comprises ten thousand acres, divided into parks, meadows, pastures, woods, and gardens. His library contains fifty thousand volumes, and is said to be the finest private library in the world. The Duke of Richmond's home farm contains twenty-three thousand acres, or over thirty five square-miles, and this in crowded England, which has in all an area of 50,000 square miles or just thirty-two millions of acres, giving, were the land divided, but two acres to each inhabitant. stables, each under the care of a special groom. The dishes and plate upon the table are all or porcelain, silver, and gold. His aviary is supplied with almost every variety of rare and elegant birds, and large herds of cattle, sheep, and deer are spread over the immense lawns.

The same authority from which we gather these facts says that the Duke of Devonshire's palace, at Chatsworth, excels in magnificence any other in the kingdom. He spends the whole of his enormous income. In the grounds about the house are kept four hundred head of cattle and fourteen hundred deer. The kitchen garden contains twelve acres and is filled with almost every species of fruit and vegetables. A vast arboretum connected with the estabis filled with almost every species of fruit and vegetables. A vast arboretum connected with the establishment is designed to contain a sample of every tree that grows. There is also a glass conservatory three hundred and eighty-seven feet in length, one hundred and twelve feet in breadth, sixty-seven in height, covered by seventy-six thousand square feet of glass, and warmed by several miles of pipe conveying hot water. One plant is obtained from India by a special messenger, and is valued at $10,000. One of the fountains, near the house, plays 276 feet high, said to be the highest jet in the world. Chatsworth contains 3,500 acres, but the Duke owns ninety-six thousand acres in the county of Derbyshire. worth contains 5,000 acres, but the Dake owns line-ty-six thousand acres in the county of Derbyshire. Within, the entire is one vast scene of paintings, sculpture, mosaic work, carved wainscotting, and all the elegancies and luxuries within the reach of almost boundless wealth and highly refined taste. Five-sixths of the soil of England is divided Five-sixths of the soil of England is divided among scarcely thirty thousand proprietors. There are twenty-uine bankers in London, whose transactions yearly embrace six or seven millions sterling. This is one side of the picture. The struggles between capital and labor are fearful—the rich always becoming richer and the poor poorer. Three hundred thousand persons die of famine in a year (?), and three hundred thousand voluntarily emigrate to escape the same dismal doom.—Richmond Despatch.

The new Senate chamber is situated in the centre of the north wing of the Capitol, and is constructed on a similar plan with that of the hall of the House of Representatives, only smaller, being one hundred and twelve feet long by eighty-two wide. This leaves more room in the building for corridors and other apartments. The Senate retiring-room, situated in the north front of the wing, is to be a magnificent apartment. It will be thirty-eight feet in length by twenty-one and a half in width, and nineteen and a half in height. The ceiling is to be of our white Italian marble, and is to be supported by relighed Corinthian columns and religious or the oure white Italian marble, and is to be supported by polished Corinthian columns and pilasters of the same material, with richly carved capitals. The walls are to be of the richest Tennessee marble, set with large plate-glass mirrors, and at each end of the room are to be niches filled with statuary. The other rooms on the north and east side of the wing are designed for private reception rooms for the Senators.

The new ball of the House of Representatives will occupy the centre of the south wing of the Capitol, and will be rectangular, one hundred and thirty-nine feet long from east to west, ninety-three thirty-nine feet long from east to west, ninety-three feet wide, and about thirty-six feet high. It will be lighted by sky-lights in the ceiling and a glass rcof, and at night by large chandeliers suspended between the ceiling and the roof. The Speaker's chair will be situated on the south side of the hall, and the members' seats, three hundred in number, arranged in a semi-circular form fronting it. There will be a continuous gallery on three sides of the hall—the north, east, and west—capable of seating twelve hundred persons, and a separate gallery for reporters, behind the Speaker's chair. The walls of the hall, under the galleries, will contain panels for paintings, and, above, niches for statuary. The hall itself will be nearly surrounded by a corridor, affording convenient communication with the post-office, the retiring rooms, and the committee rooms. office, the retiring rooms, and the committee rooms. How to Keep Cool.—The King of Siam has in the country, at a short distance from his capital, a pavilion, whither he resorts daily to refresh himself. The building is constructed of pieces of plate-glass of about an inch thick and six feet square. These of about an inch thick and six feet square. These are joined together by means of a cement as transparent as the glass itself, so that the structure appears to be of a uniform material, without a seam or a joint. There is but one door, which is so nicely adjusted that it can be closed perfectly tight. The pavilion has a wide opening at the top for the free admission of air, while a green silk awning, raised above upon columns of glass, shades the interior from the glare and heat of the sun.

The pavilion is placed in the centre of a large

The pavilion is placed in the centre of a large marble basin, which, by means of an ingenious hydraulic arrangement, can be filled with water and emptied in a few minutes. His Majesty of Siam having arrived, he is borne by his attendants into the pavilion, the door is closed and sealed tight with mostly the order viven and in an instant the basin mastic, the order given, and in an instant the basin is filled, and the crystal structure is immersed to within a short distance of its open roof in the cold water. The furniture is, like the building, composed of glass—the tables, the chairs, the baths, and all—so that everything transmits the coolness of the water, and is refreshing to the sight and touch.

Dr. King's Dispensary.

DR. A. KING, a practitioner of New York for the last thirty years, has opened a Dispensary on Market, bet. First and Second, nearly opposite the Graham House, Louisville, for the treatment of Private Diseases, such as Gon. orrhoea, Syphilis, and all diseases of the skin and other de rangements growing out of neglect or imperfect cure. His ong experience and success enable him to act with confidence. All those who may confide their cases to him may rest assured of having the disease effectually cured and every vestige of the difficulties perfectly eradicated from their constitutions.

STRICTURES of old or recent date effectually cured in a few days by an operation which causes no pain. Where a stricture exists, general derangement of the whole constitution must ensue, a continuance of which will bring on a train of symptoms to be dreaded, and will undermine the constitution and cause premature old age.

SEMINAL WEAKNESS.—Particular attention will be given to this disease and all the consequences growing out of it, brought on, in many cases, by the destructive habits of inconsiderate youth and excessive indulgence of the passions, which undermine the constitution, rendering the subject unfit for either business or society, and causing premature old age.

COLLECTOR'S BOOK.

BILL, NOTE, AND LETTER HOLDER.—The above unique and very practical invention will supply a deficiency long felt in the counting-room and among all classes of business men. It consists of a series of pockets, in alphabetical order, so arranged as to spread out like a fan and exhibit at one view the who series. When closed it presents the form of a neat compact book, well protected by strong handsome covers, and of such limited compass as to be easily carried in the pocket or laid in a pigeon-hole of the deak or safe. So complete an arrangement cannot fail to commend itself to every business man.

NATIONAL TRUNK EMPORIUM,
Corner Main and Fourth sts., Louisville, Ky.

I would respectfully invite the attention of merchants and others visiting the city to my large and elegant assortment of TRUNKS, which I am prepared to offer at least TWENTY-FIVE PER CENT. LOWER than any other establishment in the city. My stock embraces a greater variety of Trunks than is kept by any other house in the Western country. Many of the styles are entirely new and cannot fail to ase those in want of a Trunk both as regards price and quality. The many advantages which I possess over the re houses in the city, such as manufacturing my own boxes, finishing my own leather, importing my own material, enable me to offer my trunks at much lower prices than any other establishment either in this city or Cincinnati, rehants and others will be consulting their own interests by giving me a call before making their purchases. POLICE PORCEEDINGS .- Thursday, Aug. 6 .- Wm. Curran and Charles Smith were arrested yesterday by Officer Powell in Gray's alley, where they had been attempting to extort $20 from a washerwoman, alleging that they had left that amount lying on a table in her house. Wm. Davis charged them with stealing $20 from him, but it appeared that he was an associate of Curran and Smith, and thereupon was arrested this morning. The court let him off, however, but Curran and Smith were sent to the workhouse for three months as suspected felons in default of giving bail in $300.

James Peoples, Wilson Maples, Henry Oldham, Mary Trainer, Jane Ryan, and Mary King were arraigned for drunkenness and disorderly conduct. Peoples and Maples gave bail, Trainer was let off, and Oldham, Ryan, and King were sent to the FOURTH DISTRICT. To the Editors of the Louisville Journal:

STANFORD, KY., Aug. 3, 1857. GENTLEMEN: The result of the vote in Lincoln is as follows: Anderson's majority is about 450; in Boyle about 350 majority up to noon. Big Glade precinct, in Pulaski, by the news from there about noon, Anderson was 3 votes ahead. It gave Talbott a considerable majority between him and Cox. Rowling Fork, Casey county, Anderson's majority about noon was over 200 out noon was over 200. about noon was over 200.

Lincoln and Boyle will give Anderson over 800 majority, and we think that Talbot never can overcome it. Wait's majority over Kendrick (for the Senate) in Lincoln will be about 400. Hansford is elected to the House of Representatives over Norris in this county. Jones gets a fine vote, but a falling off from Anderson's. Yours in haste,
G. H. McKINNEY.

Dr. Catlin made an affidavit in the Cunningham fraud and has become a witness for the State. He says he prescribed for her for cholera morbus only. He examined her person and saw she was not in any way with child and had not been. The first he saw of the child was when it was brought in by Mrs. Barnes. He also says, if Mrs. Cunningham alleges that any child birth took place that night up to the time he left and was arrested, it is not true.

Mr. Alex. Boyd, keeper of a grocery-store on Eightceath street, was awakened vesterday morning by a gang of burglars breaking into his store on the ground-floor, and went down to seize them. One of the villains drew a revolver and shot the unfortunate man, inflicting a wound which will probably terminate fatally. The cry of murder brought the police to the spot. Edward Landren and Francis Campbell were arrested on suspicion. They were confronted with the wounded man. He did not recognize them. Boyd is not expected to live.

FEARFUL TRAGEDY IN LEAVENWORTH CITY.

Foul Murder—Confessions of the Murderer—A band of Conspirators discovered—Two of them Arrested and Hung—Great Excitement among the Citizens. Mr. Andrew Stewart, editor of the Steubenville (Ohio) Union, who has lately been traveling thro' Kansas Territory, arrived at this place on Monday evening, having departed Leavenworth City on Saturday night, the 1st, and favored us with the following particulars of a fearful tragedy enacted on Friday night and Saturday morning at that city. The statements of Mr. Stewart are derived mostly from personal observation, and may be relied upon from personal observation, and may be relied upon from personal observation, and may be relied upon as correct.

On Friday night, the 31st ult., a man named Stephens, living in Kansas City, came up to Leavenworth City, and, while spreeing around, went into a drinking shop called the Ward House. The barkeeper, named Baines, became very friendly, and, after getting Stephens quite drunk, proposed a walk up the river, and took him to a spring on the bank of the Missouri river just above the Planter's House, where they were met and assaulted by two men who demanded their money or their lives. The barkeeper, Baines, gave his money up and ran off.

When he got to the lower end of town he gave the alarm that a man was being robbed up the river at the spring. Several parties of citizens immediately went up and arrived on the spot just in time to find poor Stephens crawling out of the river, his body and head all beaten and bruised with stones and clubs and his chest and shoulders bearing several terrible stabs and cuts. The citizens ran to his assistance, but the unfortunate viction, though strugging the stone of the research was too far gone and presently died.

sistance, but the unfortunate victim, though struggling to speak, was too far gone, and presently died, without being able to utter a single word about the manner of his death or the names of his murderers. Suspicion at once alighted upon the barkeeper, Baines, and so outraged were the people, and so violent the presumptions of his guilt, that a posse of the citizens at once arrested and held him in close custody. The news in the meantime spread like wildfire all over the city, and the excitement grew intense. An immediate trial of Baines was demanded, and finally it was agreed that he should stance, but the unfortunate victim, though strugbe hung on the spot, without judge or jury. A rope was procured and put around his neck, and already he was being drawn up to the limb of an overhang-ing tree, when he expressed a wish to make a con-fassion. The crowd yielded and let him down to the ground.

STARTLING CONFESSION.

He said that he and two men, one named John Quarles, from South Carolina, and the other called Knowlton, had laid the plot by which Stephens was robbed and murdered, and that the same men had murdered another man, a short time before, and thrown the body into the Missouri river. He stated also that he and the men Knowlton and Quarles belonged to an organized body of about 25 men, who lived and carried on the business of robbing and murdering in Leavenworth City, on the island opposite the city, and in the towns of Lawrence and Topeka. He then gave the names of as many of the gang as he could remember to the authorities.

As soon as Baines had finished his revelations he was committed to the calaboose, a one-story stone building, about sixteen feet square. The crowd then went off in pursuit of Quarles and Knowlton, and in a short time had them arrested. Among the revealed conspirators was Wm. Woods, the proprietor of the greater part of Leavenworth island, and regarded by his acquaintances as an honest man and good citizen. A party proceeded at once to arrest him, and, after making a thorough search of his house, found twenty-five hundred dollars in counterfeit money, a lot of counterfeitim plates and other instruments, and a knife and pistol belonging to the murdered man, Stephens. At these conclusive proofs of the correctness of the confessions of Baines, the people were deeply moved, and held counsel together in large and small parties during the whole night.

THE PROCEEDINGS ON SATURDAY - QUARLES AND

We here give the narrative of Mr. Stewart. He says: "I went to the Mayor's office on Saturday morning, and found an immense crowd awaiing the regult of the examination of Woods and Knowlton. Baines and Quarles were in the calaboose. While the examination was going on, Judge Lecompte was outside making a speech and expostulating with the angry crowd in favor of law and order. The cry of 'hang'em, the d——d murderers' arose frequently from the mob, but milder counsels seemed to be prevailing, when at once some one shouted, 'to the calaboose! to the calaboose!' and away a crowd of about fifty maddened men started in that direction. BAINES HUNG.

"The balance of the people followed after in smaller parties, leaving Judge Lecompte almost alone and the mayor's office relieved of its throng of spectators. They had been gone about fifteen minutes, when I heard a great yell. I started after the crowd, and followed it to the bank of a creek, which divides south and north Leavenworth, where there was a steep bank, and on its edge a large elm tree. I reached the spot just in time to see Quarles suspended from the tree, grasping in the agonies of death at the rope which was around his neck, while several of the mob were swinging on to his arms and legs to make his death sure. His body had hardly ceased its convulsions, when the shout was raised for Baines. in that direction.

ceased its convulsions, when the shout was raised for Baines.

"The rope was placed around his neck, and he was led to the edge of the bank, when some one of the citizens appeared by his side, and with a watch in his hand, demanded five minutes' time for further confessions. They granted it; when Baines said, if they would let him, he would show them another man in town who was concerned in the operations of the gang. He was then taken to the calaboose, but for some reason did not give satisfaction to the people, and they demanded his body to be returned to them. Judge Lecompte again addressed the perple, and with some effect, for they seemed to divide into two parties, the one clamoring for the hanging of the prisoner, and the other demanding a trail for him. Marshal Denis of the territory was also preaent, and, though he exerted himself with all his power, he could not maintain his position at the door of the calaboose, nor prevail on the crowd to disperse. for Baines.

'The wife of Baines also appeared, and, inspired by the dangerous situation of her husband, took a heroic stand on the entrance, and endeavored by frantic threats and entreaties to stay the wrath of frantic threats and entreaties to stay the wrath of the populace. But all efforts were unavailing; the peace party were beerpowered. Judge Lecompte's voice was drowned by the shrieks of the mob. A large piece of hewn timber, perhaps twenty-five feet long and one foot square, that was lying near, was lifted up by a crowd of men, and plunged with fearful effect against the calaboose door. The sight of the wife's distress and the sound of her screams, mingling with the ragings and shrieks of the infuriated mob, were too much for me, and I turned my back and walked away. I heard another blow from the piece of timber, and a simultaneous shout from the crowd, which told me that the door had given way, and the prisoner was at the mercy of the peoway, and the prisoner was at the mercy of the peo ple.

"I walked hastily around the square, for with all its terror there was a fascination in the sight, and reached the spot just in time to see the mob rushing down the street, with the prisoner, toward the creek and the elm tree. I pursued, and when I reached the spot the body of Baines was already in the air, and his last death struggles were shivering along his limbs. The crowd then appeared to be satisfied. Woods and Knowlton meanwhile had been placed in an omnibus and hurried off to the fort. ontinued very much excited up to the fort. The city continued very much excited up to the hour I left, but no further violence was anticipated. All sorts of stories prevailed, and many of the mysterious disappearances and robberies which have occurred in the territory are all being referred to this band of mysderer. murderers.

ADDITIONAL REPORT.

We are indebted to Messrs. Fitzger and Ryland, clerks of the steamer Emma, for the following additional particulars of the tragedy detailed above. The statements as furnished our river reporter, it will be seen, show no very material variations from the above report of Mr. Stewart. The only discrepancies are in the names and situations of Quarles, and Baines or Payne, and Knight Knighton, or Knowlton. The following is the statement by the clerks of the Emma: On Friday, the day of the Emma's arrival at Leavenworth City, a man from Kansas City, named Stephens, came to the formers place and presented a check at the bank for $108 place and presented a check at the bank for $108, and received the money. He was seen to count the money by a man named Quarles, who kept a gamhouse ir Leavenworth bling house ir Leavenworth.

This man prevailed upon Stephens to go with him to a spring of water near the town, and here they were joined by several members of a gang of murderers. Stephens was then murdered, his body robbed of the money, and thrown into the river. Quarles, on reaching town, related the above story, adding also that he was robbed at the same time; but his manner of relating the affair, and several inconsistencies in his statement, aroused the suspicions of the citizens, who took him into custody. A large party then proceeded to the scene of the murder, where the victim was discovered. Two or more of the gang were at once apprehended and taken into town.

One of them, quite a youth, named Payne, made a full confession of the deed, and also of the numer-One of them, quite a youth, named Pavne, made a full confession of the deed, and also of the numerous achievements of the gang. The crowd kept Quarles and Payne, for the purpose of finding evidence sufficient to convict them of the crime. After considerable deliberation and the delivery of a speech by Judge Lecompte, who endeavored to quiet the excitement, the crowd, fearing interference from the troops in the fort, took Quarles to a tree below town, and hung him soon after. Payne shared the same fate. On Sunday, as we passed down, the ringleader, whose name is Wood, and one Knight, or Knighton, were in the hands of the enraged people, and were to be hung on Sunday afternoon.

Wood was making his will, and his comrade, Knight, was writing a confession. Wood is supposed to be very well off, probably from success in his diabolical undertakings. We did not learn thename of those who were implicated as confe lerated by the youth who confessed.

It is worthy of remark, however, that some twelve or thirteen citizens could not be found when inquired after on Saturday.

The antira community appeared to be unanimous.
